Honorable Commissioners and Supervisors,

I am writing to respectfully request your consideration for my appointment to the recently vacated NV State Senate District 16 seat.

As the sitting Assemblywoman for NV State Assembly District 26, my seat is one of two seats (Assembly District 26 & 40) nested in Senate District 16. Having first been elected in 2016, I have had the honor of serving the people in my community for three regular sessions and two special sessions in the NV Legislature. Additionally, I have been a strong, committed public servant since 2005, serving in several capacities, including as a Commissioner on the State of NV Commission on Aging for three years, and as a Commissioner for the City of Reno Recreation and Parks Commission for seven years. I have also served as the President of the Reno Philharmonic Guild, and as a Board Member of the State of Nevada P.T.A.

Recently, on September 15, 2021, I also made public my intent to run for the vacated Senate District 16 seat. I strongly believe that the people in Senate District 16 deserve someone who understands the District's issues and has been an active participant in our community. It has been an honor to serve as your Assemblywoman and I am confident that the experience I have gained will allow me to serve the people in the District, bring a wealth of knowledge and expertise to the District, and to serve as a valuable member of the NV State Senate.

I am grateful for the Washoe County Commissioners and the Carson City Board of Supervisors consideration. I have enclosed my complete resume' and supplemental documents for your full review.

I would appreciate your vote.

Respectfully submitted,

Reno Gazette Journal- Working to benefit all Nevadans-

Lisa Krasner- July 13, 2021

We have a new administration in Washington, D.C., yet federal politics remain as divisive as ever. Most Americans are sick of partisan politics; elected representatives who refuse to co-operate with people of other political parties, regardless of the issue. While I do not compromise on principles, I believe that working together on nonpartisan issues that are important to everyone, regardless of their political party affiliation, is in the best interest of the people.

The 81st Nevada legislative session ended "sine die" on May 31. I write today to inform you of the hard work that I did on your behalf during the 120-day legislative session. I am proud to announce that six of the bills that I sponsored were signed into law. I worked together with Republicans and Democrats to create bipartisan legislation to benefit all Nevadans.

Assembly Bill 102 for disabled veterans (with Assemblyman Edgar Flores): This Bill allows honorably discharged United States veterans to enter Nevada State Parks for free. This was one of the top priorities for the Nevada State Veterans Association.

Assembly Bill 143 for victims of human trafficking (with Assemblywoman Shannon Bilbray-Axelrod): This bill creates the State of Nevada Human Trafficking Coalition, and a statewide resources web page for victims of human trafficking. This bill will help local human trafficking task forces in Nevada to cooperate, communicate and coordinate on a statewide level and allow Nevada to receive increased federal funding.

Assembly Bill 251 regarding juvenile justice (with Assemblywoman Rochelle Nguyen): This bill allows children to have their juvenile court record automatically sealed at age 18 and allows them to petition the court to have their juvenile record expunged if the crime was a misdemeanor or less. (Did you know a minor can be arrested for a misdemeanor for drinking a beer in public?) This previously created a permanent criminal record for a child age 17 or younger, hindering their acceptance into college and their chances of getting a job. This will give our kids a fresh start and a second chance.

Assembly Bill 333 regarding land use planning and affordable housing (with Assemblyman Tom Roberts): This bill addressed a loophole in the law to help developers, contractors and others working in the construction industry to create job and build the affordable housing that we need in Nevada.

Assembly Bill 231 regarding holocaust and other genocide education in our schools (with Assemblywoman Lesley Cohen): This bill states that education on the Holocaust and other genocides will be taught during social studies classes. With antisemitism on the rise in our country, it is important that we never forget the atrocities of the Holocaust and other genocides. Discrimination in any form is wrong.

Assembly Bill 344 for senior citizens and disabled persons (with Assemblywoman Clara Thomas): This bill will help with the transition of older persons and persons with disabilities when discharged from a hospital to their places of residence. Staff will review with the patient what medications they need to order, and who to contact for their next appointment.

I want to thank all of you for your input during the legislative session. The concerns of my constituents are very important to me in deciding how to vote on a particular issue. Serving as your state assemblywoman is a responsibility that I take very seriously. I am dedicated to making Nevada an even better place to live, work and raise a family. It is an honor to represent you in your government.

Bipartisanship for victims' rights - Lisa Krasner and Pat Spearman -June 11, 2019

While most citizens are tired of hearing about all of the partisan politics and bickering in the United States Congress, here in Nevada two legislators worked together in a bipartisan fashion during the 2019 Nevada Legislative Session to help victims of crime. While criminal justice reform was a priority for the Nevada Legislature this session, it is important to always consider the rights of victims of crime when implementing criminal justice reform.

Unfortunately, in 2016 Nevada had the third highest rate of women murdered by men in the country. Studies show that 93% of women killed by men were murdered by someone they knew, not the stranger hiding in the bushes.

To address this issue, Republican Assemblywoman Lisa Krasner and Democratic Senator Pat Spearman collaborated during the 80th Nevada legislative session on three bills to help victims of domestic violence, victims of human trafficking and victims of sexual assault.

AB142: Abolishes the statute of limitations for sexual assault where there is DNA evidence. This ensures the preservation of DNA evidence in the 15% to 20% of cases where a sexual assault exam is done but the victim does not file a police report at the same time,

AB410: Extends the time for a temporary protection order from 30 days to 45 days for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault or aggravated stalking. Research show that a temporary protection order is an announcement to the world that the abused woman refuses to “take it” anymore, and she is taking steps to act on her own behalf.

SB368: Provides assistance for victims of sex trafficking. It establishes a “Survivors’ Bill of Rights” and sets forth procedures regarding the collection and analysis of sexual assault forensic evidence kits.

The criminal justice system can be intimidating for anyone not familiar with a courtroom. Crime victims may suffer physical and emotional trauma. The injuries suffered by victims can cause immediate and long-term stress, both emotional and physical. But many victims are resilient and go on to lead successful lives.

By working together for the purpose of helping all Nevadans, two legislators from different political parties and different parts of the state showed that justice can be achieved for victims of crimes.

Abuse victims deserve justice, closure- Lisa Krasner

Recently the news has focused on the horrendous situation with the USA Women's Gymnastics coaches and team doctor Dr. Larry Nassar. Despite many people being aware of ongoing sexual abuse of gymnasts as young as 8 years old, nothing was done to stop these predators.

Now, 20 years later, more than 260 brave women have come forward with their own distressing accounts of sexual abuse by USA gymnastics coaches and Dr. Nassar.

Many of these former child athletes only now have found the inner courage to stop blaming themselves and speak openly about what happened to them as children. While we can't turn back time, we can help others that were abused as children. Many children do not understand that what happened to them was abuse, until they become adults.

Up until last year, child victims of sexual abuse in Nevada had only 10 years to sue the predators that abused them as children. During the 2017 Nevada legislative session I introduced Assembly Bill 145 and the members of the Nevada Legislature unanimously approved it.

AB 145 extends the period from 10 years, to 20 years from the time they turn 18 years old, for a victim who was sexually abused as a child to sue for damages. This extra time will allow child victims the opportunity to get justice and closure.

Governor Sandoval signed my bill into law in a moving ceremony attended by adults who were child victims of sexual abuse and their families.

Last week, Congress passed the Protecting Young Victims from Sexual Abuse and Safe Sport Authorization Act of 2017. This bipartisan legislation requires governing bodies for amateur athletics to report abuse claims to law enforcement. Failure to do so can potentially lead to prison terms.

We must all strive to ensure the safety of our children. They are the future of our state and our country.

Assemblywoman Lisa Krasner represents District 26 in the Nevada Legislature.

Nevada should extend child sex abuse reporting limits: Lisa Krasner and Irene Bustamante-Adams

- March 6, 2017

Assemblywoman Lisa Krasner and Assemblywoman Irene Bustamante-Adams are from different political parties and different parts of the state yet they are working together on AB145 to pass bipartisan legislation to extend the statute of limitations for child victims of sexual abuse.

The statute of limitations is the time within which a lawsuit must be initiated by a victim.

Child victims of sexual assault are profoundly affected by the abuse. There is a psychological effect that weighs heavy on a victim. Studies show that many victims report they were unable to deal with what happened to them as a child, until much later in life.

One in four women and one in five men report being sexually abused as a child, yet psychologists believe that most cases go unreported.

Children do not report because of fear of not being believed or shame. Others never report because the assailant threatens to hurt them or a family member if they do.

Studies show that in 80% of the cases reported the pedophile who assaults children is someone in a position of trust with the child and their family, it may be a family member. It is rarely the stranger in the bushes.

The current statute of limitations in Nevada is ten years for children once they reach 18. Legislation proposed by Krasner and Bustamante-Adams, will extend that Statute of Limitations to twenty years from the time they turn 18, for child victims of sexual assault.

While many children who were sexually assaulted as a child grow up to lead healthy, productive and successful lives, there are many that experience anxiety and depression which leads to later issues in their lives:

- Drug & alcohol abuse: Sexually victimized children are 3 times more likely at risk for substance abuse.
- Violence/arrests: Abused children are 67 times more likely to be arrested than those who were not.
- Women on welfare: Over the last decade, surveys of welfare recipients produced estimates of sexual abuse that are strikingly high. Persons surveyed that were sexually abused as a child: 28% in Chicago, 38% in Washington State, 41% in Utah and 42% in Massachusetts.
- Runaways: Abused children were more than twice as likely to run away from home than non-abused children.

Victims feel betrayed and are unable to trust adults because someone they depended on has caused them great harm or failed to protect them.

We need to insure that child victims of sexual abuse have their day in court and pedophiles do not walk free. The doors of the courtroom must remain open for all victims, so that they may have justice and closure.
